

COMMUNITY-UNIVERSITY COLLABORATIONS IN RESEARCH SERIES

Culturally Responsive Research: LGBTQ Community

The Community-University Collaborations in Research series concludes with a final workshop focusing on culturally responsive research engaging the LGBTQ community.

A diverse, community-friendly panel will engage the audience in discussion about disparities and perceived barriers to conducting research with these communities.

Attendees will gain a sense of how community engagement and inclusive research is crucial when it comes to developing new, relevant approaches to treatments and interventions. They will also be more informed of ways to participate in these research opportunities.

Light refreshments will be provided. Walk-ins are welcome.
