Barrett takes over at Buffalo on interim basis

Buffalo, NY (Sports Network) - With Turner Gill taking over at Kansas, the University at Buffalo named Danny Barrett interim head coach while a national search process commences.

Gill had been head coach for The University at Buffalo for the past four seasons, but he accepted the job at Kansas on Sunday.

"Moving forward I have every confidence that Danny Barrett will provide great leadership for our program while we search for our next head coach," said school athletic director Warde Manuel. "We will begin a national search immediately to find the best person and football coach to keep us competing for championships on an annual basis while focusing on the efforts of our student-athletes in the classroom. Coach Barrett is a candidate for the position and is the only internal staff member that will be considered."

Gill led Buffalo to its first Division I conference championship and bowl appearance in the program's history, when the Bulls shocked the college football world last year by defeating No. 12 Ball State, 42-24, in the Mid- American Conference Championship game.

Barrett just finished his third season with Buffalo and his first as offensive coordinator. Before coming to the Bulls he served as head coach and assistant general manager for the Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Canadian Football League. He played quarterback at both the Division I level and for 14 seasons in the CFL.
