

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 2008
☁ 46° in TWIN CITIES (MORE CITIES)

NEWS & FEATURES

EVENTS

MEMBERSHIP

ABOUT US

THE CURRENT

CLASSICAL

[LISTEN
PLAYLIST](#)

[LISTEN
PLAYLIST](#)

NEWS

[LISTEN
SCHEDULE](#)

RADIO Programs

Go

Campaign 2008

MPR COVERAGE : PRESIDENTIAL RACE : SENATE RACE : HOUSE RACES : EVENTS : CONVENTIONS : RESULTS

Undecided to the end

Broadcast:
Midmorning,
10/28/2008,
9:06
a.m.

EMBED | HELP

Since the presidential candidates are so diametrically different, many experts are baffled by the existence of the undecided voter so close to Election Day. Midmorning asks if this indecision is a myth and how valuable the undecided vote really is.

GUESTS

James Campbell: Professor and head of the department of political science at SUNY Buffalo. He researches election forecasting and the impact of swing voters on presidential elections.

Ron Elving: Senior Washington editor for National Public Radio.

Beth Reinhard: Political writer for The Miami Herald.

Jeff Schapiro: Political writer for the Richmond Times Dispatch.

©2008 Minnesota Public Radio | All rights reserved
480 Cedar Street, Saint Paul, MN USA 55101 | 651-290-1212
