Here is how

We connect, collaborate & create
How do you start your research?

You can count on the University Libraries to fuel your intellect, spark your imagination, and support your scholarly and creative endeavors. From our expansive digital and print collections to our innovative services, programs, tools and partnerships, the UB Libraries advance intellectual discovery by connecting people with knowledge.
We provide the resources for research.

The University Libraries offer an outstanding array of information resources, technologies, services and people to support the academic and creative achievements of our students, faculty, staff and community members.

Our libraries are vibrant gathering places where you’ll find books, journals, computers, media, WiFi, print centers and plenty of spaces for individual or group study.

Many library materials are available online, including e-books, e-journals and streaming media. Hundreds of databases for academic research are accessible both on-campus and off-campus.

To accommodate busy schedules, Silverman Library is open around the clock during fall and spring semesters, and our Instant Librarian virtual reference service is available 24/7.

Ask a Librarian

Have a question? Librarians are here to help at every stage of the research process. There are many different ways to contact us: visit a reference/information desk, email, call or text us with your questions, or schedule a one-on-one appointment with any of our subject librarians. Learn more at library.buffalo.edu/askalibrarian.

Chat
Get quick answers by using our Instant Message chat service.

Email
We provide reference assistance via email at library@buffalo.edu.

Text
Send your reference question as a text message to (716) 304-0002.

Phone
North Campus: (716) 645-2820
South Campus: (716) 829-5683

In-person
A subject librarian is assigned to each UB academic department and school. Our librarians are experts in the areas they serve and can help you find the best information possible.
Finding Library Materials

Finding library materials in a large academic research library can seem daunting at first glance, but the UB Libraries have a variety of helpful tools that you can use to search our vast array of digital and print resources. When searching, if you don’t get the results you expect, ask us for advice. We’re happy to help you find what you need!

For more information, visit library.buffalo.edu/findlibrarymaterials.

Everything Search

This is a great place to start when you’re just beginning your research. If you’re not quite sure what you’re looking for or where to begin, choose an Everything Search, and then narrow your results to particular types of items. Search results can include:

- Books & Book Chapters
- E-Books
- Journal Articles
- Databases
- Magazines & Newspapers
- Websites
- Subscribed Content

Libraries’ Catalog

The Libraries’ Catalog contains records for print and online materials owned by all of the UB Libraries. Materials include:

- Books
- Journals
- Newspapers
- Conference Proceedings
- Sound & Video Recordings
- Government Documents
- Maps
- Archival Collections
- Musical Scores

760,000+ E-BOOKS
4 million+ PRINT VOLUMES
Databases

The UB Libraries subscribe to hundreds of databases covering a wide range of subjects. Many of these databases contain full-text articles or citations to articles published in academic journals, magazines and newspapers. In cases where the full text is not immediately available, you may see links to where the full text can be found in other databases. Most databases provide options such as emailing, printing or saving articles or citations.

E-Journals

The Libraries provide access to thousands of individual journals in electronic format. You’ll find scholarly, professional and trade publications as well as popular magazines. We also subscribe to large e-journal collections, including JSTOR, ScienceDirect and Project Muse.
Course Reserve

To ensure that all UB students have access to course-related materials, instructors often place items on Course Reserve through the UB Libraries. Items placed on Reserve for a class may include books, videos, textbooks, e-books, journal articles, book chapters, recordings and other materials. Use the Reserve tab on the Libraries’ main web page to search for Course Reserve materials.

Course Reserve is available at: library.buffalo.edu/reserve.

Research Guides

Research guides for more than 50 academic disciplines are available on our website. Developed by UB subject librarians, each guide offers information and helpful links to digital and print research resources, including top databases, primary sources, e-journals and more.

Research Guides are available at: research.lib.buffalo.edu.
Delivery+ is the free document delivery service the University at Buffalo Libraries use to provide library materials to faculty, staff and students. Use Delivery+ to request materials from any UB library or any library in the world.

Electronic Delivery

Using Delivery+, journal articles and book chapters are delivered electronically to current UB students, faculty and staff.

Material Pick-Up

UB faculty and staff may have books delivered to their official campus addresses; students can pick up materials at any UB campus library.

Interlibrary Loan

If we don’t have what you need, just use Delivery+ to request books or journal articles from any library, anywhere.

Accessing health information
Health Sciences Library

The Health Sciences Library in Abbott Hall on the South Campus offers services to meet the information needs of students and faculty in UB’s five health sciences schools: the Jacobs School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences, the School of Dental Medicine, the School of Nursing, the School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences, and the School of Public Health and Health Professionals.

Subject Expertise

The Health Sciences Library provides personalized reference and education services for students, faculty, staff and the community. Our skilled subject librarians help you design research strategies, access key databases, effectively use the Libraries’ vast information resources, and stay current with health information. Services are also available for area hospitals and health care professionals in Western New York.

Austin Flint Reading Room

The spectacular Austin Flint Reading Room on the library’s second floor is the architectural highlight of the building and a perfect place for quiet study. The Reading Room features hand-carved woodwork fitted by Kittinger craftsmen, ornate chandeliers, and individually-controlled table lamps, reflecting the elegant look and feel of the building’s 1930 construction.

History of Medicine Collection

The Robert L. Brown History of Medicine Collection includes historical materials in all areas of the health sciences, with a particular focus on the Western New York region. A highlight of the collection is The Edgar R. McGuire Historical Medical Instrument Collection, which contains hundreds of medical and dental instruments and artifacts dating from the early Roman period to the late 20th Century.

Whispers Café

Whispers Café, located in the Health Sciences Library, is a welcoming, comfortable spot where library users can take a break from their studies, relax with friends, and get a bite to eat without having to leave the library. For hours of operation, visit: library.buffalo.edu/whispers-cafe

Law Library

The Charles B. Sears Law Library occupies six floors in the center of the School of Law, and boasts a variety of different study spaces available for all UB students. Collections and services are tailored to support the research and educational missions of the UB School of Law community.

As the only research-level law library in Western New York, the Charles B. Sears Law Library is an important community resource that serves the legal information needs of the UB community, the practicing bar, and the public at large.

Collections & Services
The Law Library is committed to building and maintaining a hybrid collection that includes a balance of electronic, print and non-print material. We provide expert research assistance and information services that promote the effective use of the library’s resources by its users, whether within the physical environs of the Law Library or in remote locations.

Passport Services
The Law Library is an authorized Passport Acceptance Facility. Passport agents in the Law Library are certified to distribute forms, accept completed paperwork, review required documentation, and forward applications to the U.S. regional passport agency. For more information, visit library.buffalo.edu/passport.

Expand your musical horizons
Music Library

The Music Library supports the instructional and research needs of the UB Music Department and provides support to disciplines that intersect with music. The Music Library also serves the music information needs of our local arts community and is a destination for casual listeners wishing to expand their musical horizons. We welcome all who study or simply enjoy music.

Services for Everyone

Interested in music? This is the place for you! The Music Library is open to everyone. Our knowledgeable staff assists students at any stage in their academic careers through email, phone or personalized consultations. The Music Library subscribes to a wide variety of e-resources, including streaming audio and video services. Along with a printer, scanner and WiFi, our amenities include listening stations for in-house use of sound media, individual study carrels and computer workstations.

Collections

- Over 100,000 volumes of scores, sheet music, and performance parts
- Music-related literature and journals
- Sound recordings and videos
- Extensive digital collections

Special Materials

The Music Library owns music manuscripts dating as far back as the 16th century, first editions of 17th and 18th-century works, and facsimiles of significant musical compositions. Other offerings include recordings of local contemporary music performances and lectures, clippings, programs, reviews and announcements for events sponsored by UB’s Music Department.
Libraries Annex

The Libraries Annex, a 16,000-square-foot, high-density storage facility, houses more than one million low-use books and journals. This specially-constructed building includes a reading room, document delivery center, staff work areas and parking. Annex materials may be used on-site or requested via the Libraries’ Delivery+ service.

Request Materials
Requests for materials located in the Annex may be submitted at any time using an online request form available on the UB Libraries’ website. In most cases, individual journal articles are transmitted electronically, often within one business day. Books are delivered to a campus library or department office within one business day. To request materials from the Annex, visit library.buffalo.edu/delivery.

Architecture & Planning

Established in 1974, the Architecture & Planning Library is located on the third floor of Abbott Hall on UB’s South Campus. Our collections and services support the university’s School of Architecture and Planning, focusing on the fields of architecture, design, urban and regional planning, historic preservation, landscape architecture, zoning, and urban and environmental studies.

Collection Highlights

- Books, reports and other materials related to Buffalo and Western New York landmarks, including works by and about Frank Lloyd Wright, H.H. Richardson, Frederick Law Olmsted, Louis Sullivan and others
- Architectural drawings, renderings, and architecturally-significant archival materials for Western New York and UB campus buildings
- The Rudy Bruner Award for Urban Excellence Digital Archive, with text and images documenting city spaces that have been transformed using creative solutions

Abbott Hall

Historic Abbott Hall, home of the Architecture & Planning Library and the Health Sciences Library, was designed by noted Buffalo architect E. B. Green. Constructed in the 1930s, the elegant limestone structure, located at the heart of the South Campus, served as UB’s central library until the 1970s.

Special Collections

Special Collections includes four units: The Poetry Collection, University Archives, Rare & Special Books and The Robert L. Brown History of Medicine Collection. Housed separately from the Libraries’ regular collections, the rich literary and historical materials found in these collections make them invaluable to researchers and a distinguished part of the university.

To students and scholars, Special Collections offers a broad range of opportunities for teaching and research. Featuring books, manuscripts, documents, artifacts, and other primary sources that enliven history and bring the past to life, many of these collections attract international attention.

These collections are “special” because of the obligations they carry for both physical care and intellectual access. Many of the materials are rare, even unique, some are very fragile, and all are susceptible to natural deterioration through time and the danger of sudden destruction or loss. The Libraries provide secure, climate-controlled facilities to ensure that our Special Collections will be preserved for future generations.
The Poetry Collection

420 Capen Hall  |  (716) 645-2917
library.buffalo.edu/pl

Founded in 1937 by Charles Abbott, the Poetry Collection is the library of record for 20th- and 21st-century Anglophone poetry. It is comprehensive in its collection of first and other bibliographically significant editions, little literary magazines and journals, broadsides, anthologies, criticism and reference materials. Additionally, the collection holds more than 150 archives and manuscript collections from a wide range of organizations, presses, magazines and poets, including James Joyce, William Carlos Williams, Helen Adam, Robert Duncan, Robert Graves, Dylan Thomas and Wyndham Lewis. The Poetry Collection is a regional repository for many of the publishers and arts organizations of Western New York. There are also substantial collections of artwork, audio recordings, ephemera, photographs, visual poetry and zines, making it one of the largest poetry libraries of its kind in the world.

As an active research center for the study of modern and contemporary poetry, the Poetry Collection supports with its materials a wide range of scholarly publications. We open our doors to visiting researchers from around the world, loan items to exhibitions, assist with the educational activities of undergraduate and graduate students at UB and elsewhere, and host lectures, conferences, readings and other events.

“We would endeavor to build, piece by piece, a collection of books which would include every text by a twentieth-century poet writing in English. We would get every edition that recorded authentic variants. And we would keep constantly in front of us the goal of completeness, that desert mirage, forever vanishing to reappear in the distance.”

Charles Abbott, Director of UB Libraries, 1934–60
These records should not only preserve the story of growth... They should also capture something of the color of the changing human procession that winds its way down through the endless reach of time...”

Samuel P. Capen, UB Chancellor, 1922-1950
Rare & Special Books

420 Capen Hall
(716) 645-2917
library.buffalo.edu/rarebooks

The Rare & Special Books Collection began in 1935 with the donation of Thomas B. Lockwood’s collection of rare books, which includes such significant publications as four 17th-century folios of William Shakespeare; first editions of Edmund Spenser’s Fairie Queene, John Milton’s Paradise Lost, and Walt Whitman’s Leaves of Grass; works by fine presses such as Kelmscott, Doves, Roycroft, and Ashendene; and other collections including presidential signatures, ancient Greek and Roman coins, and drawings by William Blake.

Comprised of over 14,000 titles, the Rare & Special Books Collection also includes other historically significant editions, incunabula, modern first editions, Julian Park’s francophone collection, Joseph H. Brennan’s collection of metallurgical titles, a Gran Colombia collection, Frank A. Hartman’s ornithology collection, and the American Orthodox Catholic Alliance Collection.

Robert L. Brown History of Medicine

B5 Abbott Hall
(716) 829-5737
library.buffalo.edu/historyofmedicine

The Robert L. Brown History of Medicine Collection includes historical materials in all areas of the health sciences, including dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy and public health. Established in 1972, the collection is named in honor of Robert L. Brown, MD, former associate dean of the UB School of Medicine, in recognition of his strong support of the Health Sciences Library for over 25 years.

An important goal of the collection is to open a gateway to the history of medicine and the health sciences by acquiring, collecting, preserving and exhibiting books, instruments and educational resources from the past.

The guiding principle of the Robert L. Brown History of Medicine Collection is found in its motto: Chart the future by exploring the past.
Library Collections

The University Libraries’ print and digital collections enhance the learning, research, teaching and creative activities of our students, faculty and staff as well as those of the local and global community members we serve.

Polish Room
517 Lockwood Memorial Library library.buffalo.edu/polish-room

Established in 1955, the Polish Room is home to more than 12,000 volumes of Polish history and literature, including many important works on the history of Buffalo’s Polish-American community. The literary and artistic materials in the Polish Room are a rich resource for students, scholars and community members interested in Poland, Polish history, and the history of Buffalo’s Polonia.

Open by appointment to anyone interested in Poland and Polish-American culture, we invite you to visit in person or explore our website to learn more. Recent initiatives include digitization of selected works in the collection, making these unique materials accessible to a global audience.

Map Collection
Basement, Lockwood Memorial Library
library.buffalo.edu/maps

The UB Libraries’ Map Collection is home to Western New York’s largest and most comprehensive collection of maps and cartographic materials. The Collection includes more than 320,000 maps, 4,000 aerial photos and 500 atlases, and covers all regions of the world with emphasis on Buffalo and Erie County, New York State, the U.S. and Canada.

Topographic maps for the U.S., Canada and the world, along with maps of Europe, Mexico and other areas are also included in the Map Collection. Thematic maps, illustrating features such as population, geology, landforms and water resources, are available for all regions of the world.

12,000+
POLISH PRINT VOLUMES

320,000+
MAPS
To enhance access to the Libraries’ rich and diverse collections, UB librarians have digitized thousands of historical photographs, print materials, audio and video recordings, artworks, and other unique materials. Our digital collections support teaching and learning activities, enrich scholarship and research, and provide access to rare or fragile items that may be too delicate to be handled regularly by the public.

Over 100 distinctive collections cover such diverse subject areas as African American studies, architecture, biology, medicine, music, poetry and psychology. The Libraries’ digital collections also contain a wealth of material related to UB history, including images and text from student newspapers, yearbooks and university publications issued in decades past.

Multimedia Collections & Services, located on the third floor of Silverman Library, is home to an extensive collection of DVDs, CDs and other audio visual formats as well as video recording studios and editing stations. Streaming video and audio titles are available for coursework, research and entertainment.

Consultations are available for help in locating multimedia materials, creating clip compilations, and managing copyright information. UB students may borrow a variety of multimedia equipment including cameras, laptops and audio equipment.

Additional multimedia collections and services are available at the Music Library in Baird Hall, the Law Library’s Koren Audio Visual Center in O’Brian Hall, and in Abbott Hall, South Campus.

Scholarly Communication

Scholarly publishing and the emerging field of digital scholarship are constantly evolving, and the UB Libraries can help you navigate the various systems at play: copyright, data archiving, open access and more. Learn more at library.buffalo.edu/faculty.

Workshops & Consultations

Each semester the Libraries offer a slate of workshops, from Excel for engineers and how to use Endnote citation software, to copyright and fair use. You can stop by any reference desk to ask a librarian a question, schedule an individual session with a subject librarian, or meet with a digital scholarship specialist to discuss publishing or copyright.

Open Access Publishing

The goal of open access is to improve upon the traditional scholarly publishing system by making research more accessible. Open access journals are freely available on the internet and do not have subscription charges. Many funding agencies require open access to the research they fund, and a digital scholarship specialist can assist with your open access publishing initiatives.

Copyright & Fair Use

When using other people’s content in your projects and papers or when publishing your own work, it is important to understand copyright and fair use. A digital scholarship specialist is happy to answer your questions about publishing options, author’s rights, copyright agreements and other scholarly communication issues.

Archive Your Scholarship (UBIR)

Archiving your work can increase your work’s visibility and help assure its permanence. The easiest way for UB scholars to archive their work is to deposit it in the UB Institutional Repository (UBIR). Hosted by the Libraries, UBIR collects, preserves and distributes research and scholarship created by UB faculty, staff and students, including full-text articles, reports, images, and audio and video files (if copyright allows).
Visitor Information

The University Libraries are open to the public and free of charge. More information is available at library.buffalo.edu/visitors.

Friends of the Libraries

Annual Membership in the Friends of the University Libraries Borrower Program is open to anyone interested in borrowing privileges at the University at Buffalo Libraries.

Borrowing:
- Friends may borrow circulating materials for four weeks. Audiovisual materials circulate for 10 days.

Database Access:
- In-library access is available to our searchable databases. Due to licensing restrictions, off-campus access is not available.

Computer Access

Guests may use visitor computer workstations for in-library access to databases, e-journals, e-books and governmental websites.

Visitor Parking

Enjoy free parking with shuttle service to the academic spine at the Center for Tomorrow lot on UB’s North Campus. Paid parking is also available in the Fronczak Lot or at a metered spot. Parking is free in any UB campus lot after 3pm daily.
