

POINTS OF PRIDE WITHIN UB'S

Alumni

The University at Buffalo Alumni Association is a volunteer-led international organization that provides ongoing service and support to alumni, the university, its students, faculty, and staff. The association connects the diverse talents and intellectual capital of nearly 200,000 people in 122 countries.

GREAT GRADS

Many UB alumni have gone on to greatness, and the arts and media industries have benefited particularly well from notable alumni. They include Harvey Weinstein, founder of Miramax Films; Alan Zweibel, original Saturday Night Live writer; actors Ron Silver (TV's Rhoda, Hill Street Blues, The West Wing) and Peter Riegert (Animal House, Traffic); Paramount Pictures' CEO Brad Grey; Wolf Blitzer, award-winning journalist for CNN; Abbe Raven, president and CEO of A&E Networks; and Terry Gross, host of NPR's Fresh Air.

STUDENT PROGRAMS

A positive alumni experience begins as a student. To help prepare students for future success, the alumni association provides a myriad of alumni-student programs: Dinner for 12 Strangers, Meet-a-Mentor, career nights, University Student Alumni Board, Real Life 101, and an Alumni Ambassador program.

AWARDING EXCELLENCE

The Alumni Association Achievement Awards annually recognize countless individuals who have made significant contributions to the university and society. Wilson Greatbatch, for example, revolutionized medicine with his invention of the implantable cardiac pacemaker.

Connections

VOLUNTEERING

Every year hundreds of alumni from every walk of life (and from around the globe) give something back to UB by mentoring current students, hosting a Dinner for 12 Strangers, serving on alumni association committees, or becoming active in local alumni chapters.

MEMBERSHIP

Thousands of loyal UB alumni show their pride as dues-paying members of the UB Alumni Association. Their support allows for ongoing programs and services that benefit UB alumni around the world.

CHAPTERS

Regional and international chapters bring a bit of UB to alumni wherever they live. Chapter programs are a perfect forum for reconnecting, learning about what's new on campus, professional networking, and making a difference.

COMMUNICATION

Alumni keep their finger on the pulse of the university and with each other with UB Today magazine, @UB, and UB Connect, an online community exclusively for UB alumni.
