I. Center Overview

History

Created nearly 30 years ago under a bequest from Buffalo attorney Christopher Baldy, the Baldy Center for Law & Social Policy supports research on the interdisciplinary study of law and legal institutions throughout the University at Buffalo. With an operating budget of over $500,000 in 2008-2009, the Center not only engages faculty and students campus-wide, it also has national and international impact through the scholarly publications, conferences, workshops, and other activities described in this report. The center is located in the University at Buffalo Law School.

III. Collaboration and Community

Baldy Center Working Groups

Children, Families, and The Law

Examines the intersections between children, families and the legal institutions with which they intersect and the relationship between "private family" and "public law".

Convenor: Suzanne Tomkins, UB Law

ClassCrits

Interested in questions of law and economic inequality arising from within the tradition of critical legal scholarship.

Convenors: Martha McCluskey, UB Law; Athena Mutua, UB Law

Cultural Policy and Diplomacy

Seeks to draw together scholars interested in exploring the many facets of the typically under-researched areas of cultural policy and diplomacy.

Convenors: Ruth Bereson, Arts Management Program; Carole Rosenstein, Arts Management Program

Gender, Law, and Social Policy

Explores the intersections of legal, social, and political constructions of gender and gender-related issues and the implications of these constructions for public policy.

Convenor: Isabel Marcus, UB Law

International and Comparative Legal Studies

Fosters interdisciplinary research on the national and transnational arenas where law and policy intersect with general social phenomena and practices.

Convenor: Claude Welch, Political Science

Law and Anthropology

Brings together several scholars who work in this area across the university to examine the intersections of law and anthropology. UB has more anthropologists who work in this area and have degrees in both than any other university in the US.

Convenors: Rebecca French, UB Law; Mateo Taussig-Rubbo, UB Law

Law and Religion

Focuses on the interrelations of law, religion, and society in this and other cultures and interrogates the relationship between law and religion in social groups and institutions.

Convenors: Jeannette Ludwig, Romance Languages & Literatures; Elizabeth Mensch, UB Law

Law, Place, and Space

Attempts to identify how law and geography bear upon each other, and to draw out the points of contrast, support, and complicity, especially with respect to taken-for-granted distinctions between the social and the material, the human and non-human, and what constitutes persons and things. The Baldy Center Group attempts to flesh out some spatio-legal relations as those pertain to a range of disciplines: law, geography, American Studies, sociology, engineering, urban planning, public health, and anthropology.

Convenors: Irus Braverman, UB Law; Sharmistha Bagchi-Sen, UB Geography

Migration Policy and Pluralism

Focuses on law and public policy surrounding international population movement and the rise and functioning of pluralism within ethnically diverse societies.

Convenors: David Gerber, History; Teresa Miller, UB Law

Projecting Law: Law and New Media

Provides a forum in which faculty and graduate students can explore the role of media as a tool to illuminate, reflect upon, and project law and its broad impact upon society.

Convenors: Teresa Miller, UB Law; James Milles, UB Law

Racial Justice

Provides a forum for discussion of scholarship on race and inequality, with a particular interest in people's interaction with racialized landscapes, spaces, and institutions.

Convenors: Carl Nightingale, American Studies; Theresa Runstedtler, American Studies

Theory

Provides a forum for discussion on moral, political, and legal theoretical matters relating to social structures, institutions, or the norms of interpersonal behavior.

Convenors: Guyora Binder, Law; Ken Ehrenberg, Philosophy; Ken Shockley, Philosophy

Annual Faculty Retreat

During a retreat each winter, the Baldy Center celebrates accomplishments throughout the year. Almost 50 faculty members from across disciplines gathered on a snowy evening for drinks and hors d'oeuvres for the year to welcome new colleagues, discuss current research, and congratulate faculty supported by the center. The 15th Annual Baldy Center Retreat was held on December 16, 2008 at the Barton House, Darwin Martin House Complex in Buffalo. Director Rebecca French and Deputy Laura Mangan welcomed new faculty and congratulated Baldy authors.

Baldy Center Annual Retreat 2008

Regional Sociolegal Studies Conference

May 19, 2009

The Baldy Center has organized the Regional Sociolegal Studies Conference since 1996 in conjunction with Canadian universities including York University and the University of Toronto. These events have provided an annual occasion to address topics of mutual interest for socio-legal scholars from Southern Ontario and Central and Western New York. The 2009 Regional Conference was hosted by the Baldy Center for Law & Social Policy at the University at Buffalo

Law School on May 19th. In between the provocative plenary sessions, the faculty and graduate students enjoyed informal networking and lunch.

"Pro-Bono, Lawyers and the State: Cross-Border Perspectives of Governance"

Moderator: Robert Berger, Director, Canada-US Legal Studies Centre, UB Law School;

Robert Granfield, UB Sociology

Monday Night Conversations

The Baldy Center's Monday Evening Conversations allow scholars to meet and discuss any topic related to the center over an Indian meal at a restaurant in the Elmwood district of Buffalo.

Examples of Monday Night Conversations this year include a presentation with comments, a working group discussion around a future conference, a meeting of scholars interested in submitting an external grant proposal and scholars from several departments who meet regularly to discuss books of interest to the group. Please forward your suggestions for a Monday evening giving your preferred date, the topic, the intended participants, and the name of the convenor for the evening.

IV. Presentations, Conferences, and Workshops

Theorists & Jurists Series

In January 2009, the Baldy Center initiated a new program called the Theorists & Jurists series to bring in scholars of national and international fame who have made ground breaking contributions at the intersections of social or political theory and the law. Each of these events has attracted large audiences of local practitioners, regional politicians, law students, UB faculty and staff, as well as members of the public. Many of the events have included several day visits in different groups as well as giving a major lecture.

V. Publications

Law & Policy

With volume 30, Law & Policy celebrated thirty years of publishing innovative, international, interdisciplinary scholarship. The editors released a new resource for the law and policy community, the "Law and Policy Blog" in mid-summer 2008, and they supplemented journal content with podcast interviews with two L&P authors. In late-spring 2009, the journal achieved a major milestone for a scholarly publication by earning inclusion into the Social Sciences Citation Index. Beginning with volume 31, Law & Policy will be produced and owned by the University of Denver.
