

Gender Institute News and Events Archives 1998-2011

2011

January-February 2011 (The Buffalo Spree): UB Gender Institute Film Festival enters year fifteen

“The IWFF (International Women’s Film Festival), which is sponsored by UB’s Gender Institute, consists mostly of little-known films made by un- or underfunded independent women filmmakers.”

November 18, 2011 (Buffalo Business First): The Gender Institute names new Deputy Director Despina Stratigakos

“The University at Buffalo has appointed Despina Stratigakos to serve as deputy director of the UB Institute for Research and Education on Women & Gender. Stratigakos, who joined UB in 2007, is an associate professor of visual studies and architecture who works in UB’s architecture department.”

March 10, 2011 (The UB Reporter): Former Gender Institute Co-Director Sharmistha Bagchi-Sen is highlighted discussing the interdisciplinary nature of Geography

“Geographers have traditionally read literature from a lot of disciplines so we have a wide understanding of different fields,” Bagchi-Sen says. “I think it has made us more resilient in problem-solving; we tend to look at different perspectives in order to come up with solutions.”

2009

September 18, 2009 (The UB Reporter): Gender Week: Gender Matters @ UB

“Women at work will be the theme of this year’s Gender Week: Gender Matters @ UB, a series of more than 20 lectures, panels and other events from Sept. 21-25 that will highlight the wide range of gender-inclusive and sex-specific scholarship being done at UB and by visiting scholars.”

2007

September 20, 2007 (The UB Reporter): IREWG grows in numbers, stature UB’s Gender Institute celebrating its 10th anniversary on campus

“As the Gender Institute celebrates its 10th anniversary this year, its leaders recall there was a time not too long ago when the organization was little more than a dream in the minds of some very active and dedicated faculty.”

2006

November 9, 2006 (The UB Reporter): Lecture by Carine Mardorossian at the Gender Institute on impact of feminism’s “second wave”

“A UB researcher says that regardless of claims that feminism is passé and unnecessary, women are still being victimized by a self-generating, patriarchal social system. We just don’t recognize it.”

October 5, 2006 (The UB Reporter): "UB to celebrate Gender Week Disability rights activist Judith Heumann to deliver keynote address"

January 13, 2006 (UB News Releases): "Film Festival Spotlights Women Worldwide"

2005

September 15, 2005 (UB News Releases): 'UB to Celebrate "Gender Matters/Gender Week": Environmental advocate Winona LaDuke to present keynote address'

“LaDuke, an environmental activist and Native-American author, as well as the vice-presidential candidate on the Green Party ticket in 1996 and 2000, was named by Time magazine in 1994 as one of America's most promising leaders under the age of 40. Her address, "Recovering the Sacred: Women Remaking a Devastated World," will take place at 4 p.m. Sept. 19 in the Black Box Theatre in the Center for the Arts on the UB North Campus.”

January 21, 2005 (UB News Releases): "Nine Works to be Featured in International Women's Film Festival"

2003

August 28, 2003 (The UB Reporter): Barbara Bono, New Director of the Gender Institute

1998

September 1998 (UB Today): UB's New Women and Gender Institute takes on cutting-edge scholarship

“It is the kickoff event for the recently organized Institute for Research and Education on Women and Gender, whose codirectors, Margaret (Peggy) Acara, professor of pharmacology and toxicology, and Isabel Marcus, professor of law, exemplify the institute's interdisciplinary focus.”