Re-Imagineing International Education In/Through the Global Pandemic

Monday, November 14, 2022
9:00 a.m. - Noon || 107 Capen Hall

NOAH SOBE
Professor of History
Loyola University Chicago
Education Futures Work in COVID and Post-COVID Times

JING LIN
Harold R. W. Benjamin Professor of International Education
University of Maryland
Holistic, Heart-based Education for a New World: Reviving Indigenous Knowledge and Wisdom Traditions

IVETA SILOVA
Professor and Associate Dean of Global Engagement, Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College
Arizona State University
No More Status Quo: Reimagining Academic Conferencing and Research in the Age of Global Pandemics and Climate Crisis

SAMEER HONWAD
Assistant Professor of Learning and Instruction
University at Buffalo
Education for Sustainability and Resilience in a Changing Climate

SUNHA KIM
Associate Professor of Counseling, School and Educational Psychology
University at Buffalo
Fostering Global Competencies through ICT-Mediated Education for International Migrants

REFRESHMENTS PROVIDED

This symposium is sponsored by the Vice Provost’s Office for International Education, Graduate School of Education, Asian Studies Program, and the Department of Indigenous Studies.