

Danielle Hurtado

Undergraduate Assistant, Beirowski Lab

Danielle Hurtado is currently studying at the University at Buffalo as an undergraduate student.

She is interested in biomedical and neurosciences. Currently employed as an accessioning clerk at a WNY medical laboratory, her workplace specializes in clinical and anatomic pathology, hematopathology, and cytogenetics.

She aspires to become a physician, and her curiosity lies in the fields of neuroscience and women's health.

Her passion for medicine compelled her to participate in a pre-medicine fellowship to Cuenca, Spain, to shadow physicians in the fields of general surgery, ophthalmology, and emergency medicine.