

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

WELCOME ghosen | Log Out

My Account | Messages | Preferences

As of Tuesday, June 24, 2008

Set My Home Page

Customer Service

News

Today's Newspaper

My Online Journal

Multimedia & Online Extras

Markets Data & Tools

Classifieds

- Home
- News
- Technology
- Markets
- Opinion
- Lifestyle
- Personal Finance
- Small Business
- Autos
- Careers
- Education
- Real Estate
- SmartMoney

COMMENT FROM breakingviews

No WaMu Loss Yet for TPG

Infusion Terms Protect Firm If Thrift Goes to Well Again; Compensation for Shortfalls

June 24, 2008; Page C12

Washington Mutual's shareholders may have felt sore about its sweetheart deal with TPG. In early April, the thrift raised $7 billion from the private-equity firm and certain existing shareholders. The deal included stock at a big discount and in-the-money notes convertible into stock. Now that WaMu's shares stand more than 30% below the price at which TPG invested, should shareholders take comfort in the fact that TPG is shouldering some of the losses?

Not really. TPG is protected if WaMu has to raise more money within 18 months of the deal with the buyout firm. If the Seattle bank sells more than $500 million of stock or stock-linked securities at less than $8.75 a share, the already-discounted price at which TPG invested, the company is required to compensate TPG fully for the difference. The other big shareholders participating in the deal have a similar safety net lasting nine months.

Associated Press
Washington Mutual CEO Kerry K. Killinger

ADD TO PERSONALIZED HOME PAGE

EMAIL PRINT MOST POPULAR

Tool Buzz DIGG

THIS

MY SPACE GET RSS FEEDS

more from breakingviews.com

SEARCH PAST COLUMNS

Search for these words:

Display all columns

RECENT COLUMNS

- High Time for Rights Offer
- No WaMu Loss Yet for TPG

TODAY'S MOST POPULAR

- 1. Consumer Confidence Plummets
- 2. Mortgage Program Fuels Risks
- 3. Californians Cross the Border for Gas
- 4. GM Slates Sweeping Rebates
- 5. Opinion: The Bush Doctrine Is Relevant Again

MORE

TODAY'S NEWSPAPER

MY ONLINE JOURNAL

ADVERTISEMENTS

DEALS

Go To Deals Search

Special Offer

Subscribe to the print Journal today and receive 8 weeks FREE! Click Here!

POLITICAL DIARY NEWSLETTER

Available for only $7.95 a month

SIGN UP NOW

Advertiser Links

TPG, which isn't allowed to sell its WaMu securities for at least 18 months, will lose if the company's stock falls and the thrift doesn't raise additional capital. But falling financial-stock prices lately have been a sign that shareholders fear capital is insufficient to absorb further losses. WaMu wouldn't be the first financial company to go back to investors for more.

If that happened, pre-existing shareholders would be heavily diluted. Some portion of any cash raised -- or maybe, as an alternative, a barrow-load of free shares -- would have to be used to compensate TPG. If further stock-price weakness followed and WaMu tried for yet more capital, it could kick off a vicious spiral. TPG is better protected than other shareholders and could even end up owning most of the thrift's shares.

Shareholders gather Tuesday to vote on aspects of TPG's investment. Unhappily for them, the deal includes a feature that penalizes WaMu if they don't approve it. To be sure, WaMu's hand was very weak. Still, shareholders should make sure the company's bosses hear their protests.

Beware Bubble-Fueled Deals

Companies with high stock prices often are tempted to use their shares to buy inexpensive-looking targets. The commodities boom has given this strategy new life -- take, for instance, BHP Billiton's recent $150 billion offer for rival Rio Tinto. Now, U.S. agricultural-goods company Bunge has agreed to trade $4.4 billion of its paper for Corn Products International. Such deals can, however, be unfriendly to the buyer's shareholders.

Bunge's deal, for instance, looks slightly value-destructive for its owners. Bunge says the combination should generate $100 million to $120 million in annual "cost cuts and incremental profit." If the deal lives up to that potential, the extra profit would be worth perhaps $840 million today for shareholders. That is less than the roughly $970 million premium Bunge is paying.

So why proceed? Well, Bunge's stock was up 50% from a year earlier Friday, adding $5 billion to its market value, while shares in Corn Products -- which has less sway over its products' prices -- haven't budged. The diverging share-price trends make the valuation gap look tiny.

PEOPLE WHO READ THIS...

Also read these stories:

- Barclays Faces Investors' Questions
- High Time for Rights Offer
- Driving Away Oil Speculators May Not Help
- Money Managers Turn Bearish
- Time to Reunite Banks and Wall Street Dealers?

Recommendations sponsored by:

NEW! Are you on Facebook?
See what content on this site is popular with your friends!
Learn more »

Your Facebook Friends Reading

- Soros Now Warns of a 'Superbubble'

Seen by 4 friends | Facebook for UNICEF | New York

Provided by SeenThis by loomia

COMPANIES

	Dow Jones, Reuters
Washington Mutual Inc. (WM)
PRICE	6.02
CHANGE	0.22
	12:44a.m.
Bunge Ltd. (BG)
PRICE	107.20
CHANGE	-2.53
	12:44a.m.

A WSJ Monthly Fund Analysis, presented by Janus

Weigh in on the Retirement Debate! Presented by WSJ & Allstate

AT&T's World Roaming Plan

John Hancock presents The Best of Personal Journal

Listen to original WSJ.com Podcasts

Accenture: Enterprise Systems for high performance

Save \$200 on new HP notebooks.

Stories of Innovation by IBM®

The Journal Report: Business Insight

Midsize Businesses run SAP

Ballon Bleu de Cartier

People Ready Business Articles courtesy of Microsoft.

Office Live Workspace-Sign Up Free

Get a FREE Web site for your business.

Explore Incredible India: Where Diversity Delights

CLOSE more sales and get more customers.

Cut connectivity costs by 50%.

The problem, though, is that stock-for-stock acquisitions of this kind don't always work. A recent paper by academics Baruch Lev and Feng Gu suggests they tend to destroy value. Moreover, the two found that stocks of companies that use paper to make acquisitions after their shares have run up in price subsequently perform worse than those of peers that stay on the sidelines. In other words, the headaches from slamming together two companies outweigh the benefits of paying with wooden nickels.

Bunge may succeed in making the best of the combination -- Corn Products' business is closely related to its own and could act as a useful hedge. Yet shareholders, perhaps fearing a more typical outcome, sent Bunge's shares down 9.4% Monday. A few more market reactions like that could cool company bosses' ardor for all-stock acquisitions, even if they are sitting on bubble-boosted shares.

--Lauren Silva and Robert Cyran

Personalized Home Page Setup

Put headlines on your homepage about the companies, industries and topics that interest you most.

RELATED ARTICLES FROM ACROSS THE WEB

Related Articles from WSJ.com

- CenturyTel Dividend to Jump Jun. 25, 2008
- Business World Jun. 25, 2008
- Today's Markets Jun. 23, 2008
- Responding to Activist Investors, Companies Give Poison Pill More Punch Jun. 18, 2008

Related Web News

- Tuesday's biggest gaining and declining stocks Jun. 24, 2008 marketwatch.com
- US food giants in \$4.4bn tie-up Jun. 23, 2008 news.bbc.co.uk
- Bunge to buy Corn Products for \$4.4 billion: report Jun. 23, 2008 news.yahoo.com
- Stocks in the Spotlight Tuesday - Barrons.com Jun. 11, 2008 online.barrons.com

More related content Powered by Sphere

 EMAIL THIS
 FORMAT FOR PRINTING
 MOST POPULAR
 ORDER REPRINTS

 YAHOO! BUZZ
 DIGG
 MY SPACE
 Get RSS Feeds GET RSS FEEDS

THIS

Return To Top

WSJ Digital Network:

MarketWatch|Barrons.com|AllThingsDigital

Dow Jones News Alerts|FiLife|MORE

Log Out Contact Us Help Email Setup My Account/Billing Customer Service: Online | Print

Privacy Policy Subscriber Agreement & Terms of Use Copyright Policy Mobile Devices RSS Feeds

News Licensing Advertising About Dow Jones

Copyright © 2008 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

*/ **/*