

Planning

FOR COMMUNITY FOOD SYSTEMS IN THE GLOBAL SOUTH

Implementing an Opportunity, Innovation, and Equity Framework

April 30, 2020 ↓ 9:00 AM EST

This free webinar will highlight ways in which local and regional governments in the Global South can utilize an Opportunity-Innovation-Equity (OIE) framework when planning for their community food system.

The OIE framework is designed to help practitioners and local governments understand the elements of a good food systems planning process.

This webinar will demonstrate how to recognize strengths, challenges, and opportunities in a community food system. Participants will learn about how to implement the OIE framework to translate these lessons into concrete actions in their communities.

Upon completion, participants will receive a certificate of completion.

RSVP by April 25 to receive a zoom link.

For questions or additional information contact foodsystems@ap.buffalo.edu

© Daniela Leon

Webinar series hosted by the Community for Global Health Equity and the Food Systems Planning and Healthy Communities Lab at the University at Buffalo, with support from the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.