

August 2023

Dear Colleague,

Welcome to the University at Buffalo! As the directors of the Institute for Research and Education on Women and Gender, which is informally known as the UB Gender Institute, we are delighted to invite you to our Welcome Reception for New and Returning Faculty on Thursday, September 14 from 4:00 to 6:00pm. We will be having this year's reception at the University Club, 202 Norton Hall.

Founded in 1997, the UB Gender Institute is a university-wide center dedicated to promoting research and teaching related to women, gender, and sexuality. We offer grants and awards to faculty and students to support scholarship, as well as a rich and varied line-up of programming that includes lectures, workshops, reading and writing groups, and conferences geared toward the entire UB community. Events for Fall 2023 include a presentation from Dr. Jeffrey Iovannone who will be discussing his digital exhibit, Leslie Feinberg's Buffalo: Historic Sites in Stone Butch Blues. The site celebrates the thirtieth anniversary of the groundbreaking lesbian novel Stone Butch Blues. Iovannone earned his PhD in American Studies from UB and is a public historian and preservationist who has been instrumental in preserving Buffalo's vibrant LGBTQ history. We will also be hosting two lunch-time virtual Feminist Research Alliance Workshops where faculty will share their current research with the UB community. For more information or to register for upcoming programming, visit our Events Page.

To receive weekly announcements about gender-related events and opportunities at UB, in Western New York and beyond, please join our listserv. If you are interested in becoming an Affiliate of the Gender Institute, please send an email to ub-irewg@buffalo.edu. Open to researchers and faculty, it carries no new obligations. Gender may be the primary focus of your work, or it may be just one part among many.

The Institute is located in the UB Commons, North Campus, on the second floor, Suite 207. Feel free to drop by and introduce yourself and check out our student art gallery.

Wishing you all the best for a pleasurable first semester at UB. We look forward to seeing you at our events soon.
